

WH Smith open two stores at the new International Airport in the Region of Murcia

WH Smith, the UK's leading News, Books and Convenience travel retailer, continues its expansion into the Spanish market with the addition of two new stores at the newly opened Región de Murcia International Airport in Murcia.

The stores, in the Landside and Airside areas, are now open to customers and have been designed with a new look and contemporary feel, in line with Aena's expectations for the new airport.

Both stores offer customers a tailored range of products specific to the location with a focus on the national and international customer. Product ranges include Spanish and International newspapers, magazines and books, as well as confectionery, drinks, sandwiches, travel essentials and digital accessories.

Región de Murcia International Airport opened on 15th January 2019 and operates with single passenger terminal servicing international and regional flights.

WH Smith's Managing Director, International, Phil McNally commented: "The two new stores at the International Airport in Murcia mark another great contract win for our business in Spain and complements our existing operations in Alicante-Elche, Tenerife Sur and Adolfo Suarez Madrid-Barajas Airports. We look forward to welcoming passengers to the stores to enjoy a fantastic range of products, as well as excellent customer service."
